faction of the legendary School of the Spider. It arose after the emigration of several Witchers from this school of Witchers in Melukka to Maecht who decided to stay after accompanying the first Melukkans merchants on their journeys to the north.

History

The school was established in the ancient ruins of Newa Bryt, a former Vran fortress, which was long time abandoned, during the 11th century.

The School arose, mainly, because of the need to finish with the crales, a unique monster of the zone, which was complicating that the kingdom prospered.

The School was destroyed by orders of King Akerspaark before 1258 due to various conflicts between the Crown and the witchers.

Characteristics

As a splinter faction of the School of the Spider. The School of the Crales shared certain characteristics with it, such as similar armor and equipment. But their methods of killing monsters were far more aggressive than the Spider Witchers.

A big difference with the Spider Witchers and others, was the use of much finer swords but much more effective in fighting.

Hence they took the crales as the symbolic creature of the school.

Crales witchers, in some way like the School of the Dragon witchers did not have a neutral morality but rather a black or white morality.

Many Crales witchers, were loveable rogues who helped the poorest in ways that were not appropriate or in line with Nilfgaardian/Nordling morality.

Trivia

- The crales are a reference to the scrael, a creature of the King Killer Chronicles saga.

Notes

- For the School of the Crales, let's say that crales would be a creature that would look like a fusion between a mantis and a spider. They would have a great size, bigger than the one of the arachas and very sharp insect legs with which they would finish with their prey. They would have very vivid colors, more vivid than those of the arachas. Colours and shapes, very similar to those of certain species of frogs in the jungles.
- For recent times, the crales would be almost extinct (The creature).
